Horse Show At Chatham on July 15th

The Virginia Walking Horse Association has selected the beautiful Bright Leaf Celebration Showgrounds at Chatham as the site for its first annual all-Walking Horse Show. The Association's purpose in sponsoring the show, which is to be held July 15, is to promote the Tennessee Walking Horse as an animal for show and pleasure.

In organizing the event, the Association's Show Committee, headed by Lawrence Beard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beard of Appomattox, has worked closely with several members of the Bright Leaf Celebration Show Committee, which plans Chatham's popular all-breed show held each September. Beginning at 6:30 p.m. on the 15th, there will be sixteen classes with horses from New York to Georgia expected to compete for a silver challenge trophy in each class and over $3000 in cash awards. The classes will include two-year-old, three-year-old, four-year-old and aged horses as well as lady, amateur and juvenile riders. Also included will be a class for pleasure Walking Horses.

Judging all classes will be Mr. Robert P. Lindsey of Little Rock, Arkansas, Mr. Lindsey has long been associated with this breed and is one of the most highly respected judges in the country, as is evidenced by his having judged major shows throughout the U. S., including the National Tennessee Walking Horse Celebration in Shelbyville, Tennessee, in 1969 and 1971. Other officials include Mr. Paul Shelton, Chatham, Master of Ceremonies; Mr. Jimmy Dalton, Gretna; Mr. J. H. Leonard, Lexington, N. C., Photographer; Dr. Cody Addison, Lynchburg, veterinarian; and Mr. Coye Landrum, Blairs, Farrier.

A special feature of the show will be an exhibition by the Radford College Redcoats, a popular equestrain drill team under the direction of Mr. Dick Neff, which has appeared at the Bright Leaf Celebration for the past several years.

Show Chairman Lawrence Beard urges all spectators and exhibitors to come early and enjoy the fine cooking of the Woodlawn Academy's Country Kitchen, which will serve chicken and ham plate suppers beginning at 4 p.m. as well as other summer "home-cooked" specialties throughout the day and night. Members of the Academy will also be selling chances on a color television set for which the drawing will be held during the show.

The Virginia Walking Horse Association hopes that not only will its first show be a success, but also that many spectators and exhibitors who have not been to Chatham before will return on September 29 and 30 and October 1 for the Bright Leaf Celebration Horse Show.

REFLECTION'S UNFORGETABLE, 1971 World's Amateur Champion Tennessee Walking Horse, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Vaughan of Galax, Virginia, will be among the entries at the Old Dominion Walking Horse Classic to be held July 15 at the Bright Leaf Celebration Showgrounds in Chatham.

The Guillaume Painting

Some new information has turned up at Appomattox Court House National Historical Park relating to the famous painting by Guillaume -- "The Surrender of General Lee to General Grant, April 9, 1865." As you will notice from the following newspaper article of 1884, Colonel Frederick Dent is mentioned as being in the famous painting and not Colonel George A. Custer as was previously thought. You will also notice that Mrs. Custer's letter to a Mr. Lewis mentions that she saw the painting at "Sythers" of which we do not know the location. We are relatively sure, however, that it was at Sythers before its location in Coldwater, Michigan.

Since the following articles and letter might be of some interest to citizens in the Appomattox and Lynchburg area, we are including them with this bit of new information.

rary. The portraits of the two generals form the central figure of the picture and are life like. The painting is one that must attract many visitors from abroad, and certainly will pay for the journey and time spent. Gen. Grant says the room is perfect and the portraits good. Gen. Sheridan considers it a magnificent piece of art. And certainly the importance of the event entitles it to become an historic masterpiece. The artist for a long time refused to take less than $20,000 for it; but Mr. Lewis has been able to obtain it, and the citizens of Coldwater and of the State can congratulate themselves upon having so valuable a painting within their borders. We close this description with a letter from Mrs. Gen. Custer regarding the painting.

413 Woodward Ave.,
Detroit,
March 7

Mr. Lewis

Dear Sir: – It gives me pleasure to write to you about the painting of the Surrender of General Lee, and I am very thankful that it is owned by one of my own state. I have seen the painting at "Sythers" and thought from the descriptions that the officers who had seen the room gave me, that it was a perfect reproduction. The table is exactly like the one I own. General Sheridan bought it the day of the surrender and sent it to me with a letter saying that no man had done more to bring about the events of that day than General Custer. The table is now at the house of my friend in Monroe, Mr. John R. Ranch. Should you be in Monroe at any time he would be pleased to see you and show it to you.

The two chairs in which General Lee and General Grant sat are owned by two of my husband's old officers, General Whittaker, a lawyer in Washington, and General Copehart, a physician in Western Virginia.

The portraits of some of the group of officers who stand at one end of the room are sufficiently good likenesses for me to recognize them.

I cannot but think that whoever painted the picture must have taken a sketch from the room the day of the capitulation. Should you ever decide to have the painting photographed, I should be very glad to have a copy. I hope some day that I may have a little home of my own where I can gather General Custer's things together. If I am so fortunate I will have the Memorial Room photographed and send you a copy with the table in the picture. The people of our country hardly realize how valuable relics of the war are becoming.

Very truly yours,
Elizabeth B. Custer

Outdoor Recreation Survey Will Be Conducted

RICHMOND – Four interviewers who are conducting a survey for the Virginia Commission of Outdoor Recreation will be in Recreation Region No. 4 for the weeks beginning June 26th and July 3rd.

The survey will be part of a study "designed to provide the Commission with a detailed recreation study based on participation of Virginia residents in outdoor recreation activities", said Rob R. Blackmore, Director.

Included in Region 4 are the counties of Alleghany, Amherst, Appomattox, Bedford, Botetourt Campbell, Craig and Roanoke. Cities and towns included in the Region are Bedford, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lynchburg, Roanoke and Salem.

Plans call for 100 interviews to be conducted in each of the state's 11 recreation planning regions.

Four students majoring in Social Sciences and Recreation at Virginia Commonwealth University have been employed to conduct the survey. Each will carry an official letter of introduction from Blackmore.

They are Constance Martin of Virginia Beach, Patricia Walker of Arlington, and Teresa Knott and Judy Southworth both of Richmond.

"The success of this study depends greatly on the cooperation of the local citizens contacted," said Blackmore.

Spindletop Research, a non-profit organization headquartered in Lexington, Kentucky, will conduct the comprehensive study to be completed by December 31.
